

HOUSE BILL 1492

By Slater

AN ACT to amend Tennessee Code Annotated, Title 15,
Chapter 2, relative to days of special observance.

WHEREAS, activated PI3K delta syndrome ("APDS") is a rare primary immunodeficiency that affects approximately one to two people per million; and

WHEREAS, APDS is a genetic condition that occurs when there are variations to the PIK3CD or PIK3R1 genes; and

WHEREAS, people with APDS may suffer from a wide variety of symptoms, the most common being frequent and severe infections of the ears, sinuses, and upper and lower respiratory tracts, with infections usually beginning in infancy; and

WHEREAS, people with APDS are susceptible to developmental delays, including cognitive delays and growth delays; and

WHEREAS, people with APDS are also susceptible to enteropathy, swollen lymph nodes or an enlarged spleen (splenomegaly) and autoimmune and inflammatory systems issues, and may be at higher risk for cancers like lymphoma; and

WHEREAS, APDS has a median diagnostic delay of seven years; an accurate diagnosis of APDS can be a relief for people who have been misdiagnosed or undiagnosed for years; even those who are diagnosed earlier in infancy or childhood, and with the correct diagnosis, more appropriate treatments can be started; and

WHEREAS, APDS can be definitively diagnosed by a genetic test, and it is recommended that all family members of people who have been positively diagnosed with APDS also be tested, since APDS is an inherited genetic condition; now, therefore,

BE IT ENACTED BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE STATE OF TENNESSEE:

SECTION 1. Tennessee Code Annotated, Title 15, Chapter 2, is amended by adding the following as a new section:

October 1 of every year is observed as "APDS Day," to raise awareness for activated PI3K delta syndrome, and to bring attention to Tennesseans who are suffering from this disease.

SECTION 2. This act takes effect upon becoming a law, the public welfare requiring it.
